Skanska wins new partnering agreement in the UK, valued at SEK 460 M

Skanska has been awarded a new partnering agreement with CLASP, the UK body behind one of the longest-running building systems for schools and public buildings, to join in the new drive to deliver best value property solutions to its communities.

CLASP has entered a framework agreement with Skanska as its partnering contractor under an exclusive 3-year program worth in excess of GBP 30 M (approximately SEK 460 M).

For more than 40 years, CLASP has provided a rapid-build structural system in Britain and Europe, covering schools, university, healthcare facilities, defense and various public buildings.

In launching the new agreement, CLASP is establishing a new era of partnership between the public and private sectors. Skanska was chosen for its management skills and strong commitment to achieving the highest environmental standards.
