Intentia Wins Strategic Contract with Leading Apparel Manufacturer TAL Apparel Limited

Stockholm, Sweden, and Singapore/Hong Kong—Intentia International AB (publ) (XSSE; INT B), a global leading provider of collaboration solutions, today signed a contract with TAL Apparel Limited, a leading apparel manufacturer based in Hong Kong. At the same time Intentia announces a strategic partnership with TAL's parent organization TAP Group. The contract includes software licenses and implementation services for Intentia's Movex Fashion collaboration solution and is valued at over USD 4.5 million, including more than USD 2 million in software licenses. Movex will be implemented across all operating units in the group starting with its Hong Kong headquarters and followed by a rollout to all production centers in Hong Kong, China, Indonesia, Malaysia, Thailand and Taiwan.

The TAP Group's presence in the fashion and apparel industry is so significant that the company currently produces one out of every eight men's dress shirts bought in the United States. TAP specializes in the manufacture of quality men's and women's wear, tailored suits, rainwear and outerwear, which it distributes to department stores, chain stores, top labels, catalogue shoppers and retailers. TAP's customers include Brooks Brothers, Calvin Klein, Debenhams, Dillards, Giordano, Hugo Boss, JC Penney, Liz Claiborne, Nautica, Ralph Lauren, Talbots and Tommy Hilfiger, among others.

Over the years TAP has progressively developed a customized in-house ERP system. Although individual aspects of the system supported its organization well, it faced challenges integrating key business processes and critical information across its operations. Thus, a key driver for TAP was to have an end-to-end fully integrated solution that had the focus and strong functionality required in the fashion and apparel industry. Additionally, it knew it needed a solution that supported other vital aspects of the business such as capacity planning, production scheduling and inventory management.

TAP's decision to partner up with Intentia to set up a world class collaborative solution is completely consistent with its reputation for service reliability and quality through the continuous adoption of new and innovative technologies.

"Intentia's Movex solution is broad in scope covering crucial aspects to serve the needs of today's modern businesses. They are a leading player in the enterprise resource planning, supply chain management and the advanced planning and scheduling arenas, just to name a few. Not to mention that Intentia is also the only software provider which has a 100 percent pure Java solution," said Dr. Harry Lee, managing director of TAP Group.

"Admittedly, apparel specific ERP solutions are hard to find in the marketplace. Intentia has proven to have a competitive edge in this arena with a solution that has been developed from scratch to fit the requirements of the fashion and apparel industry,” Dr. Lee continued. “In fact, we especially appreciate their industry best practices application approach and foresee that down the road this partnership will result in a wealth of information and knowledge being exchanged both ways.”

The partnership is aimed at radically streamlining all of TAP’s business processes and increasing efficiency levels by implementing the full suite of Intenia’s Movex Fashion solution. Intenia’s Java technology allows Movex to deliver future-proven solutions that will protect TAP’s business investments for generations of hardware changes to come, in addition to delivering superior cost of ownership, configurability, performance, scalability and ease of software upgrades. The contract was won after an extremely stringent and lengthy evaluation. The implementation project is scheduled to kick off this month (December 2001).

Designed specifically for the fashion and apparel industry, Movex Fashion will provide TAP with complete support for customer relationship management, enterprise resource planning, business performance measurement, value chain collaboration and supply chain management.

“We recognize TAP as the industry leader for the adoption of new and innovative technologies and a clear leader in its market place. We are honored to partner with a world class leader renowned for its strategic vision. With Intenia, we are confident that TAP will be able to take these technological advancements to a whole new level to expand market reach, reduce operational costs and improve customer satisfaction,” said David Hope, regional director of Intenia Southeast Asia, Hong Kong and Taiwan.

“Our partnership with TAP is a strategic one and it is a key milestone in Intenia’s corporate history,” Hope continued. “It is evidence of our commitment to and focus on the fashion and apparel segment and supports our continued expansion in Asia. We are extremely proud of this new partnership,” concludes Mr. Hope.

About the TAP Group

TAP was established in 1947 when its founder, C.C. Lee, started the very first spinning mill in Hong Kong. He subsequently set up a number of textile mills, some of which handled fabric finishing. In the late 1950s he extended the textile operations into garment making. In 1962 all of these operations were grouped under one holding company and merged with Jardine's finishing mill to form Textile Alliance Limited (TAL). The group underwent reorganization in the 1980s and the garment manufacturing section split away from the other sections to form TAL Apparel Ltd. (TAP).

TAP was one of the first companies in the garment industry to adapt to using supply chain management (SCM) techniques. Using dedicated private networks, TAP has since the early 1990s been working closely with its customers on such SCM processes as sales forecasts, inventory management, production capacity scheduling, delivery and productivity. This led to a very successful relationship with JC Penney, and the two companies decided to become each other's major partner. By mid-1995 TAP was able to replenish stock for JC Penney within one week from the date the order was placed—a significant reduction from its standard six-month turnaround.

With assets of more than USD 500 million, TAP owns and operates garment manufacturing plants in China, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Malaysia, Taiwan, Thailand and Mexico. The company has approximately 20,000 employees. Its customers include department stores, specialty stores, branded labels, catalogue buyers and retailers throughout Asia, Europe and the United States. One out of every eight men's dress shirts bought in the USA is produced by TAL.

The company's customers include Brooks Brothers, Calvin Klein, Debenhams, Dillards, Giordano, Hugo Boss, JC Penney, Liz Claiborne, Nautica, Ralph Lauren, Talbots and Tommy Hilfiger.
