

Telelogic extends its agreement with Swedish telecom operator Telia

MALMÖ, December 21, 2001 – Telelogic (Stockholm Exchange: TLOG), a leading global provider of solutions for advanced software and systems development, today announced that Swedish telecom operator Telia has extended its corporate agreement with Telelogic. The renewal forms part of Telia's recent purchase of IT Services. The corporate agreement is renewed for the next year and covers a number of services to different parts of Telia's organization. Telelogic is one of the companies that Telia chose to sign a corporate agreement with for the upcoming period.

"Telia's decision to renew the corporate agreement is a confirmation of the added value and competence that Telelogic provides in the areas of project management and services development," said Bo Emanuelsson, President Market Division Nordic for Telelogic. "Telelogic's deep knowledge of the telecom industry allows us to take on a full responsibility for our customers' development projects."

One of the aims of the renewed corporate agreement is to develop methods for improving the quality in commissioned work, which will lead to better profitability in each project.

"Although this agreement primarily covers our professional services offer, we see a good possibility in the future to contribute to Telia's efforts to improve quality and efficiency also with our tools for managing large-scale and complex development projects," Emanuelsson concluded.
