Celsius Metech becomes Saab Metech

Saab company Celsius Metech is now changing name to Saab Metech. The change applies to all Metech companies in Sweden, Denmark, Finland and Germany.

"We will benefit greatly from being called Saab Metech in our sales of full-service solutions in testing technology and metrology, because Saab is a well-known brand with a good reputation. This is particularly true on the international market, which accounts for half our net sales," says Thomas Eriksson, President of Saab Metech.

Saab Metech is one of Europe's leading independent suppliers in testing technology and measurement service solutions for industry, the defence market and metrological instrument suppliers. The company provides complete, cost-effective solutions, which enable customers to reduce their testing and measurement costs.

Saab is one of the world's leading high-technology companies, with its main operations focusing on defence, aviation and space. The group covers a broad spectrum of competence and capabilities in systems integration.
