

Sigma and Unisys sign framework agreement covering cooperation in consulting services

The new Sigma AB, which is based on the e-solutions business area in the former Sigma Group, has signed a framework agreement with Unisys AB covering cooperation pertaining to consulting services in the fields of system integration, outsourcing, e-business, software and hardware.

The two companies have for some time held discussions relative to various forms of joint projects. They are already cooperating on a local basis in the development of the Sparbanken Finn and Sparbanken Gripen customer programs.

The new framework agreement is designed to strengthen Unisys' position in Sweden and to expand Sigma's global presence.

"Sigma is a strong player in the Swedish market and a name that we are proud to be associated with," says Ulf Granzelius, Head of Financial Services for Unisys in Sweden. "By utilizing Sigma's Scandinavian customer base we will be reaching out to a larger and broader market with our solutions. Unisys expertise in system integration, outsourcing and server consolidation, among other facilities, is being supplemented with Sigma's in-depth technical expertise in the telecom area, among others."

"For Sigma, the cooperation with Unisys opens the door for our international development," says Michael Krantz, Vice President-Sales at Sigma AB "Our connection with such a strong global player as Unisys will make it easier to cultivate potential international customers."

About Sigma

New Sigma AB focuses on business-building digital consulting services for development-intensive customers in a global economy. The services are delivered through three business areas: Business Solutions, IT Solutions and Network & Wireless Solutions. The new group has approximately 1,300 employees in 35 niche-oriented subsidiaries in Sweden and a number of other countries. (www.sigma.se)

On June 12, 2001 the former name of Sigma AB (publ) was changed to Teleca AB (publ) on the "O" List of the OM Stockholm Exchange. Teleca is the equivalent of the Embedded Solutions Business Area in the former Sigma Group. During a transition period New Sigma AB is operating as an independent subsidiary group within Teleca. Sigma AB is being "detached" after the summer of 2001 and will be listed separately on the "O" List.
