Framfab expands in Norway and acquires makeIT

Stockholm February 15, 2000 --- Framfab continues to expand internationally by acquiring makeIT in Norway.

makeIT has grown quickly since the company was established in August 1999. The company, which is based in Halden, currently has 25 employees. makeIT is a full service provider of Internet services and combines an experienced management team with system architects, programmers, designers and management consultants with competence in the Internet sector. The consideration is paid in newly issued Framfab shares.

"makeIT is the most competent Internet professional services company in Norway. Their competence will be a valuable contribution to Framfab's operations in Norway and the Nordic region", says Jonas Birgersson, CEO Framfab.

"To us Framfab is the ideal partner with a service offer and corporate culture that fit perfectly with makeIT's philosophy. Framfab is a partner which will provide us with further opportunities for expansion. Together we will be a strong strategic partner to the leading Norwegian companies", says Per Olav Andersen, CEO makeIT.
