Trio and Siemens sign agreement

Trio AB has signed a partnership agreement with Siemens AG, Information and Communication Networks, in Germany, whereby Trio will adapt its Present Office system to Siemens' subscriber switches Hicom PBX. The agreement is a breakthrough for Trio in Europe. Hicom PBX is sold in most EU markets.

Present Office is the market's most complete system for call and message management with solutions for information about all employees, call interception, voice response, etc. Present Office offers global accessibility, thereby increasing the service level outward to customers and the internal efficiency of a company.

Hicom PBX is a family of switches for small to large companies. Hicom PBX is sold in most EU markets. Siemens is a leading subscriber switches supplier in Europe.

"The agreement is a breakthrough in Europe. The partnership agreement with Siemens means we can offer Present Office to companies with 50 or more employees in most European markets," says Jan Gottlander, Managing Director at Trio AB.

Present Office is sold through partners in the respective markets. Present Office is supplier independent, which means that it can be connected to subscriber switches from the six leading suppliers within the EU.
