US Defense Department unit purchases Swedish Tiger

The IT and telecom company Sectra has received a strategically important order from the United State European Command (USEUCOM) for the secure mobile telephone Tiger. The order, which initially is for a small number of phones, is valued at SEK 1 million.

“This order for the eavesdrop-secure GSM/DECT telephone Tiger is highly pleasing. The order was secured in competition with some of the world’s largest telecom suppliers. This confirms our leading position as supplier of secure systems to the world’s most demanding customers,” says Per Unell, President of Sectra Communications AB. “

Sectra Tiger was developed in cooperation with experts from the Swedish Defense. The Tiger system guarantees secure communications all the way from the transmitter to the receiver, for voice and data transmissions and SMS services. The telephone features integrated encryption and GSM technology, making it very user-friendly. The Tiger system operates with a standard subscription in the public GSM network and fixed-wire network. Through use of the fixed telenet, the telephone can be used in locations not reached by a GSM net.
