

Press Release

October 15, 2008

TeliaSonera launches attractive prices for mobile broadband abroad

Today, TeliaSonera launches new price plans for mobile broadband customers using data services when travelling abroad. With the new price plans, customers can use their laptops to e.g. surf, e-mail and chat at lower prices while keeping control of costs.

“We want to offer our customers decent and transparent prices when using their laptops for mobile data abroad. To this end, we reduce mobile data roaming prices further by introducing European Connect based on max day charge,” says Kenneth Karlberg, President of Business Area Mobility Services at TeliaSonera. “Going forward, new offerings with reduced prices for mobile data will be launched based on negotiations with additional operators, both in Europe and other parts of the world.”

European Connect is based on a capped daily fee for a specified amount of data traffic and will be introduced for TeliaSonera’s customers in Sweden, Denmark and Norway and with selected European mobile operators. Finland and Lithuania will launch European Connect in 2009.
