

European collaboration agreement in dermatology

Meda has entered into an agreement with Uluru Inc, a US specialty pharma company, for Amlexanox 5% paste and OraDisc A™. The agreement gives Meda exclusive rights to the products in most European countries, including Eastern Europe.

Both products are used for the treatment of canker sores and include the active ingredient amlexanox. OraDisc A™ is a novel patented mucoadhesive, water-erodible disc incorporating 2mg of amlexanox for the treatment and prevention of aphthous ulcers. The disc is applied to the sore and adheres to the mouth mucosa and the active ingredient is released locally.

Meda will pay an up-front of about EUR 0,5 million for these rights. Total milestone payments are below EUR 4,8 million.

“OraDisc is a unique product that fits our product portfolio in Europe. A specialist sales force is already established and we hope to be able to launch the product already during 2010”, said Anders Lönner, CEO Meda.
