HiQ signs new general agreement with Ericsson

HiQ has signed a new general agreement with Ericsson, making HiQ a preferred supplier of consulting services during 2001.

The agreement applies to the provision of consulting services such as advanced systems development, project management and analytical studies.

“Continued successful co-operation with Ericsson consolidates HiQ’s position as a leading telecommunications consultant. We have longstanding and well-established relationships with several leading telecommunications suppliers. This gives us a unique expertise regarding new technologies that is of benefit to all our customers,” says Lars Stugemo, CEO of HiQ International.

“We view our relationships with telecoms suppliers as a seal of approval that proves that HiQ is regarded as a top supplier of high-quality consulting services,” says Stugemo.

“We are keen to follow our customers abroad and continue to offer them top-quality consulting services. We currently have offices in several countries, thus strengthening our position in the market and enabling increasing contacts with our international customers,” Stugemo concludes.
