ÅF Group acquires consulting company in Borås, Sweden

The ÅF Group has acquired the electrical consulting company, Eltekniska Projekteringsbyrå (EP-Byrå) in Borås, western Sweden, and will be integrating the activities of the newly acquired company with other electrical engineering operations within the Group.

EP-Byrå has eight employees whose work is concentrated mainly on project planning, inspection and testing within the construction industry and property management. Installation operations will also be developed further with special regard to power supply, lighting and telecommunications technology, all of which are areas of expertise where EP-Byrå already possesses specialist skills. The company also holds EN authorisation and has a client register of approximately 800 factories and plants for whom it carries out regular auditing services. The company has a record of good profitability.
