

Rosetta Stone unlocks new language levels in French, Italian, German, Spanish

Rosetta Stone, the leading language-learning solutions provider, has announced the release of additional levels in French, Italian, German and Spanish (Spain).

The award-winning company has responded to strong demand for more advanced content in these popular languages by adding levels 4 and 5. These levels were previously released in English and Spanish (Latin American), from a portfolio of 31 languages available from Rosetta Stone.

The company has hailed this an important step in the application of interactive learning tools in modern life and in affirming the success achieved by existing customers using previous levels.

Sylke Riester, Managing Director, Europe, for Rosetta Stone: We are delighted to be releasing levels 4 and 5 in French, Italian, German and Spanish. This really says a lot about the success learners are having with the interactive language-learning solutions from Rosetta Stone and is further proof to learners that we continue to work to help them achieve their goals.

Rosetta Stone is at the cutting edge of language learning, offering a program that taps into the innate language-learning capacity we all have.

The company was founded in 1992 on the core beliefs that learning a language should be natural and instinctive, and that interactive technology can powerfully replicate the immersion experience and activate the natural language-learning ability in learners of any age.
