

Press release

February 14, 2001

Best in test with Compuware

Cell Network has signed a partnership agreement with Nasdaq-listed Compuware, one of the world's leading manufacturers of test tools for IT systems. The agreement means the companies will target the Swedish market jointly during 2001.

Some ten consultants from Cell Network Sweden have been trained in a range of Compuware test tools, with the aim of quality assuring advanced IT solutions for large and small companies. With the right test, customers can reduce the cost of developing and maintaining their IT support.

"There's a growing demand from companies and organisations for tests for their IT support, including loading tests. It's no longer high speed connections, such as broadband, that are the bottleneck, but companies' own websites and e-commerce systems. With a loading test from Compuware, we can optimise a system and minimise the number of faults before it goes into operation," says Rickard Posacki, head of consultancy in the Public Service division of Cell Network Sweden.

"Together with Cell's consultants, we can improve our service to our customers in Sweden. Among other things, we can make the process more effective by implementing and adapting our products to the customer's system," says Patrick Brodin, head of marketing at Compuware Sweden.

Cell Network Sweden and Compuware have worked together previously on test methods for the Swedish Civil Emergency Planning Agency.

About Compuware

Compuware Corporation is a leading global provider of software products and professional services that help IT professionals develop, integrate, test and manage the performance of the applications that drive their businesses. Founded in 1973 as a professional services company, Compuware has become one of the top five independent software companies in the world, with more than 15,000 employees. Compuware's revenues for fiscal year 2000 totaled $2.2 billion. Compuware shares are traded on the NASDAQ under the symbol CPWR.

For further information:

Rickard Posacki, Head of Consultancy, Public Service, Cell Network Sverige, phone +46 (0)705-387647

Ellinor Bollman, Dir. Corporate Communications, Cell Network AB, phone +46 (0)703-473714

Patrick Brodin, Marketing Manager Compuware Sweden, phone +46 (0)8-703 54 01

Cell Network AB is one of the world's leading consulting companies focused on the IT/Internet, Telecom and Media/Communication. The company delivers business-critical solutions taking full responsibility for strategy, technology, design and content. Clients include Ericsson, Volvo, the Swedish Defence Material Administration (Försvarets Materielverk), Telia, General Electric, AstraZeneca, Telenor and Statoil. Cell Network is listed on the Stockholm stock exchange's Attract 40/ O-list and has about 2000 employees in 13 countries. Read more about Cell Network AB at www.cellnetwork.com