

Rosetta Stone® Valentine s Competition Holds Key to a Romantic Getaway

Je t aime! Te amo! Ich liebe dich!

Learn a language as a Valentine s gesture and you could win a £1,000 holiday, courtesy of leading language-learning solutions company Rosetta Stone.

This is a chance to impress your loved one by learning their favourite language, or their native tongue, or maybe even the language of your honeymoon destination. Rosetta Stone is giving away four holidays worth up to £1,000 each in a Valentine s competition, so learners can put their new language skills to the test on a romantic getaway. The prize is offered in holiday credit, so the winners can choose their destination.

Rosetta Stone makes language learning natural and engaging. The unique solutions use technology to replicate the way we all learnt our first language as children. Couples already tell Rosetta Stone how much it has helped them.

Laura Boyd wanted to learn her fiancé s language before their wedding in his native Italy.

Between a full time job, the wedding organisation and keeping up with friends and family, I feel like I have barely had time to breathe, and Rosetta Stone allowed me to fit learning around other commitments. I know if I had enrolled in an evening class I would probably have given up by now! she said.

Roger Beyssat gave Rosetta Stone French to his wife so she could learn his first language.

My wife tells me that French sounds so much more romantic than English, so now she is learning with Rosetta Stone, it makes a Valentine s present for both of us, he said, adding: I have bought every single language learning book, CD, DVD, computer game and even evening classes but none have worked or interested her for more than 30 minutes. With Rosetta Stone, it s a different story. She finished the first level within a week. I am really impressed.

Rosetta Stone uses the unique Dynamic Immersion" methodology to teach via context, pairing words and phrases with images and regularly reinforcing and building up vocabulary. With no translation or grammar drills, Rosetta Stone offers an easy and fun way of learning, and unique voice recognition technology enables the learner to monitor accent and pronunciation.

Rosetta Stone is giving away four trips, worth up to £1,000 each. For information on how to enter go to www.RosettaStone.co.uk
