Anthony Collins Solicitors Announce Key Appointment in Health and Social Care Sector

Nationally recognised legal specialists in the Health and Social Care Sector, Anthony Collins Solicitors, has appointed Colin Young, who brings many years of experience in the private, public and voluntary sectors.

Colin, who joins Anthony Collins Solicitors as a consultant, recently held the position of Chief Operating Officer at Leonard Cheshire Disability, the UK's largest voluntary sector provider of services to over 21,000 disabled people in the UK.

Colin commented: "I am delighted to join this distinctive firm whose commitment to this sector has been demonstrated over the past 20 years. Health and Social Care is now high-profile in both the public, private and voluntary sectors. It has been greatly affected over recent years and the Government's Spending Review announced this week will bring further burden.

"My experience in this field will enable Anthony Collins to have a deeper knowledge of the issues facing this sector, whilst ensuring that clients receive appropriate and comprehensive sector specific support."

This strategic appointment adds yet more weight and depth to the firm in this key area and consolidates its award-winning position, further increasing its presence throughout the UK.

John Wearing, Business Law Partner at Anthony Collins says: "Colin has extensive senior management experience across public, private and voluntary sectors; encompassing nursing, residential, supported housing and home care which will be a great benefit to both Anthony Collins and our clients.

"This key appointment further demonstrates our continued commitment to this vital area and to the services that Anthony Collins delivers."

Anthony Collins' activity in Health and Social Care spans the whole field, from working with GPs and other providers of primary health care, through to public and private companies of all sizes, many of the leading voluntary sector groups and the service users themselves.
