

16th July 2002

NEW PASS CUTS THE COST OF STAYING AT UK HOTELS

If you want to treat yourself and your partner to a short break or weekend away, but are put off by the high cost of hotel rooms in the UK, don't despair!

FreeAccommodation.net have just launched a new 'Free Hotel Room Pass' which entitles you to seven nights free accommodation at more than 500 of the UK's favourite hotels. All you need to pay for is breakfast and dinner at your chosen hotel, plus any extras such as drinks & phone calls.

Participating hotels are located throughout England, Scotland, Wales & Northern Ireland and include country house hotels like the Loch Kinord Hotel in Royal Deeside, traditional inns such as the Halfway House in Torpoint and intimate family run hotels like the Tregenna Hotel in Glamorgan. Many have award winning restaurants and excellent sports & leisure facilities.

A standard seven night 'Free Hotel Room Pass' costs just £9.99 and can be purchased online at www.freeaccommodation.net Although the 'Free Hotel Room Pass' requires that you stay for a minimum of two nights at any one hotel, a standard seven night pass still gives you up to three breaks anywhere in the country. If you want to stay for longer or take more breaks, FreeAccommodation.net also offer an extended 12 night 'Free Hotel Room Pass' for just £14.99.

To view the complete directory of participating hotels, simply visit www.freeaccommodation.net and click on the 'Just Browsing' button. Once in the directory, you will also be able to check out the facilities each hotel offers, see its RAC, AA or Tourist Board rating and even peruse a typical menu showing the delicious food that awaits you for your stay.

For further press information and images of participating hotels, call:

Michael Kamlish

The Direct Communications Company

Tel: 020 8939 9040/ Email: dccpr@aol.com