Cyber Com signs contract with Medtronic Physio-Control in Europe

Cyber Com to provide CyberMate PreHospital, electronic documentation systems for ambulance journals.

Cyber Com will supply its CyberMate PreHospital product, which simplifies and assures the quality of ambulance service record-keeping, to Medtronic Physio-Control in Europe.

CyberMate PreHospital simplifies and assures the quality of ambulance-service record keeping. The ambulance staff can quickly and securely enter data into a computer loaded, for example, with the LIFEPAK® 12 from which critical values, such as EKG results, are automatically transmitted to CyberMate PreHospital. This system can also be linked to crises centres from which information can be obtained on the patient and registration of the alarm. At the hospital, a complete ambulance journal can be printed. All data from observations and treatment are stored electronically. In turn, these valid data can provide support material in a journal and can facilitate statistical follow-up.

Mats Alders, Cyber Com's CEO, explains "Customer demand for electronic journal management systems is greater than ever. It's very satisfying to be able to offer CyberMate PreHospital with Medtronic Physio-Control products. This will enhance the clinical care of patients by aiding hospital physicians to receive electronically transmitted patient data from ambulance staff. This system also helps the ambulance staff potentially treat the patient on site. The staff, in turn, can perform the tasks and sign the journal. In addition, it helps the ambulance attendants manage the critical data they have to report and document."
