Trio signs order with a Vodafone company worth SEK 7.5 million regarding mobile office solutions

Trio signs yet again an order with a Vodafone company. The order is a breakthrough for Trio's solutions outside of Europe. The order means that Vodafone's Mobile office service is complemented with Trio Network Attendant, a sophisticated attendant workplace, call forwarding functions and message handling. The order is in line with Trio's strategy to focus on mature and highly penetrated mobile telephony markets.

The Vodafone company has agreed to purchase the Trio Network Attendant product, which is due for customer roll-out later this year, after a period of testing and customer trials. Trio Network Attendant is an advanced solution for mobile operators. It is based on Trio's system for integrated telephony, call and message handling, Trio PresentOffice. The system is installed in operators' networks and is available to corporate customers as a service. Trio Attendant Network is a part of Trio Mobile Office.

Trio Network Attendant will allow the Vodafone company to offer all the key advantages of fixed telephony in a fully mobile environment. Users will be able to move around freely and still be reachable as though they were sitting at a fixed telephone in their offices - regardless of whether they are working at home or are out and about. This greatly enhances both customer service and internal efficiency at companies.

"Trio's mobile office solutions for mobile operators represent a strong offer to the corporate market. This is our second deal with a Vodafone company which we believe is a receipt of our success and we notice a great interest for our solutions", says Sverker Hannervall, CEO of Trio.
