

Twentyfourseven has established office in Tallinn, Estonia.

Twentyfourseven, a Nordic full service resource house, has just opened yet a new office. This time Twentyfourseven moves into the Baltic markets, by opening offices in Tallinn, Estonia.

Twentyfourseven already has some large customers in the Baltic area, both in the daily rental business and in larger television productions. Customers and productions include Ruut TV (Baren, Survivor) and AlIFilm ("Laulurahvas - Singing people" documentary).

The Twentyfourseven representation office in Tallinn, Estonia, is run by Baltic Coordinator Räni Meister and managed by the Finnish Country Manager Arto Juselius.

"We've had some very successful business cases in Estonia during this and last year" says Arto Juselius Country Manager Twentyfourseven Oy in Finland. "Because the Baltic television production is blooming and more and more programmes are produced locally, we see the need of being physically represented in the Baltic, close to our customers. At the moment we are also having negotiations with customers in Lithuania and Latvia about some interesting new productions."

Peter Lundgren CEO of the whole group of Twentyfourseven companies comments the Baltic establishment; "Twentyfourseven is a fast growing and flexible group of companies that evolves and develops with and along our customers and markets. The Baltic countries have proved to be a very profitable and rewarding market where it's exciting for us as Nordic company to be represented, this is best done in collaboration with our Finnish subsidiary company"

The new Twentyfourseven offices are situated in Raua 20, about two minutes walking distance from the Estonian Television (ETV) building.
