Stockholm 2005-10-12. Mobile Interaction signs on to Terraplay's service solution MOVE Connect for global multiplayer gaming deployment

Swedish software company Mobile Interaction has selected connected gaming service provider Terraplay to backend its offering of connected and multiplayer gaming.

Terraplay's MOVE technology was first used by Mobile Interaction for multiplayer support in No Refuge, an eight person real-time tank warfare game was the first of their range of innovative multiplayer titles released.

Now the partnership has been extended as Mobile Interaction has chosen a complete ASP solution called MOVE Connect, which includes hosting, monitoring and maintenance.

Mobile Interaction development covers a classic collection of multiplayer games, with titles like Backgammon, Hearts, and Blockster and recently the exciting eight person real-time tank warfare game No Refuge was sent into space with the launch No Refuge Universe. Mobile Interaction aims to utilize Terraplay's MOVE Connect service to build a global community combining a great user experience with increased revenue opportunities for the operator

"Terraplay has given us great support in making our connected and multiplayer games possible and we are now scaling up the cooperation with more titles to more channels, building global community based on the MOVE Connect service." says Peter Lindström, CEO of Mobile Interaction.

"Mobile Interaction has done good numbers with the deployments of their first multiplayer games", says Sven Hålling CEO of Terraplay, "and we look forward to see the coming innovative titles that are in production."
