DORO and Telia in product partnership

DORO, based in Lund, and Telia, have started working together with the aim of jointly developing and producing products for the consumer market.

The first results of the agreement will be seen in Q3 this year, when DORO starts delivering corded and cordless phones to Telia's stores. The products will carry the Telia trademark.

DORO is an established retailer of Telia's services.

"DORO and Telia are entering into an interesting phase of co-operation. DORO is becoming an even larger supplier to Europe's former telephone monopolies, and is already a supplier in Denmark and the Netherlands. We will see similar progress throughout the rest of Europe," says Claes Bühler, DORO's CEO.

"DORO is happy to have Telia as a client and associate. We see significant opportunities for developing our co-operation further," says Ronny Söder, DORO Sweden's MD.

"Competition between products is stiff. At the same time demand is increasing for a steady stream of new products. The co-operation gives us the opportunity of exploiting our respective strengths in sectors where Telia has traditionally set high demands," says Telia Nära's Press Officer, Kåre Sjöholm.

Doro is listed on the OTC-list of the OM Stockholm Exchange and will be listed as one of the "Attract 40" companies on the O-list, from 3 July. DORO will issue its Q2 report on 17 July. Telia is listed on the A-list of the OM Stockholm Exchange.
