HiQ signs new general agreement with Netcom

HiQ is renewing its general agreement with telecoms operator Netcom for 2001. The agreement relates to consultancy services for systems development and management.

Netcom offers international telephony and national regional and long-distance telephony to companies and private customers alike.

“We see this agreement as an endorsement of HiQ’s role as a one-stop supplier of telecoms services,” says Patrik Boman, Managing Director of HiQ Data.

HiQ has been working with Netcom since the start of HiQ’s operations in 1995.

“We focus on long-term relationships with our customers. If we continue to deliver quality, they will want to continue working with us, and this benefits both parties,” he says.

“HiQ works at the very cutting edge of technology with top telecoms customers. This allows us to sustain our high level of quality and considerable technical expertise, generating added value for all our customers,” says Lars Stugemo, CEO of HiQ International.
