Medge Consulting and AMI (Advisers Media International) acquire the international media rights for the NHL (National Hockey League)

Medge Consulting together with its partner Advisers Media International (AMI) have signed an agreement to represent the international media rights for the NHL in Europe, Africa and the Middle East. The contract spans a period of five years from the season starting in 2011 and ending in 2016

The agreement establishes a long-term and strategic cooperation to expand, develop and strengthen the NHL brand and presence in international markets. The agreement includes the live HD broadcast rights for up to 480 NHL games per season, including playoffs, Stanley Cup Final and the NHL Winter Classic amongst others and a range of highlights programming and NHL support programming.

“This as a long term partnership to further develop the NHL's presence and products in Europe and beyond”, says Peter Liljestrand from Medge Consulting.

Robert Pickles of AMI adds, “We look forward to working with the NHL to increase their distribution and popularity internationally.”

Medge Consulting and AMI will also assist the international development of NHL properties, including new events. This partnership signals new renewed and strategic focus on the European and other international markets for the NHL.

“Reconnecting the NHL and its many star international players with their home country fan base is the first important step in a renewed strategy for growing the game and business outside of North America,” said John Collins, NHL COO. “Working closely with Medge/AMI we will deliver more NHL games and highlights to our international fans across more platforms and devices than ever before.”
